[Prepared for The Tribune by E. WILLIAMS.] Tories of the American Revolution—Their Condition and Political Course.

The Tories of the Revolution, at the close of the contest which established American Independence. it may well be supposed, found themselves in an awkward situation, when the shield of British pro tection was withdrawn. They were, however, re duced to the alternative of exiling themselves from their native land, or of encountering popular prejudice among their countrymen, if they remained in the country; the absentees forfeiting their estates by confiscation if they had gone into volunta ry exile before the close of the war. Many of those who had spent the years of the Revolution in England, or the British Provinces, returned, after the Peace, to the United States, and were permit ted, unmolested, to resume their occupations in bu siness, or to enjoy the incomes of their estates .-These Tories, and those who had remained here during the War, naturally divided themselves po litically into three classes, as follows:

First. Those who disdained to be called either "Republicans" or "Federalists," and who, cher ishing the appellation of "Royalists," located themselves, according to their own liking, in the cities and towns, and taking no part in elections, wearing the costume of English gentlemen of the old school their powdered wigs, cocked hats, and peculiar man ners, marking themas distinguished from their fellow citizens. Some of the present generation will recollect persons of this class, now nearly, if not quite, extinct. They were an inoffensive se of men, and rather interesting as relics of the old Colonial times, keeping the King's birth-day, and drinking the health of his Majesty, George the Third, on all suitable occasions. Second .- Those who, from mischievous or other motives, fell into the ranks of the Anti-Federalists many of them probably preferring anarchy and confusion to an efficient republican form of government, as desired by the framers of the Constitu tion. Some of these Tories, it is said, eventually became violent Democrats; possibly from similar causes to those which operate on those citizens in our day, who, calling themselves Monarch ists, always vete on the ultra Democratic sidethat, say they, being a nearer approach to mon archy than either Whigism or Conservatism. This class of Tories having been numerous in Suffolk and some other Counties in this State, which a an early period gave Anti-Federal majorities, is : circumstance which has attracted the attention of careful observers. It should, however, be noticed that Mr. Davis, in his Life of Burr, takes a different view of the matter, and attributes the strength of the Federal party in the City of New-York and some other parts of the State to the aid they derived from the Tories. To this other politiciandemur, remarking that, as the existence of the Jews is a living proof of the truth of the Scriptures, so we may now see, in the ranks of the modern ultra Democracy, many of the lineal descendants of "the Refugees and the Cowboys," who are vociferous in their support of ultra men and measures, and who lay a legitimate claim to "the spoils of victory," calling upon those who are of the lineage of the Patriots of the Revolution to stand aside.

Third-Those who, returning from exile, o having remained in this country, had refused to take up arms against the British, after the close of the war mingled with their fellow citizens, and submitting to the change of circumstances, took part in the efforts to establish an energetic National Government, joining for that purpose with the Federalists, and thus becoming members of that party. Mr. Peter Van Schaack of Columbia County, whose life has been lately written and published by his son, was one of this class. He was supported as one of the candidates for Delegates to the State Convention which adopted the Constitution in 1788, but as the Anti-Federalists were in the majority, he, with others on the Federal Ticket, was unsuccessful." The memoirs of Mr. Van Schaack are interesting, and the excellence of his private character is attested by Judge Spencer, Chancellor Kent, Judge Vanderpoel, and others.

The Anti-Federalists endeavored to turn the popular odiam existing at that time against the Tories to the prejudice of their political opponents, as will be seen by the following extracts from appeals in newspapers of those times:

From 'The New-Yo.k Journal and Patriotic Register,'

"The Sons of Liberty (wno are again called upon to contend with the sheltered oliens and strangers who have by the courtery of our country been accepted as citizens by the refore invite at who wish for the peace, liberty and honor of the State, to vote for the following nomination as Members of the Legislaure:

Assembly. William Denning, Henry Rugers, Marinus Willett, Melancton Smith, Gabl W Ludlow, Aaron Burr, Isaac Stoutenburgh, Th. B. Stoughton, Nicholas Bayard."

The above ticket cannot have received more than about 200 votes, as the Federal ticket received from 1,400 to 1,500 out of 1,650 votes, the whole number then polled in the city. 'The Sons of Liberty' are noticed in the publications of 1765 as a society then in existence. From the New-York Journal, April, 1787.

"To the Whigs of the City of New-York:

"After a seven years struggle we obtained freedom and again were in possession of our habitations. At the close of the War we were led to think that those miscreants, the Tories, would no more dare to show themselves, and that they never would get into public office. But we now find to the contrary, that they do and will creep into power, unless timely prevented. What privileges do the Whigs enjoy more than the Tories' Do not Tories'-lect and are they not elected? What reason have we to expect that these persons will not, in the course of three or four years, fill every office in the State. God forbid that this should ever be the case.

"As the Election for Aldermen is nigh at hand, and as there is no doubt that Tory influence will be again used to get in men whose principles are as black as their own, you should be careful and watchful over the interests of your country by electing firm Whigs, and not every weather-cock that may be set up as a candidate.

"A TRUE WHIG."

The following documents will attract attention, after a lapse of more than fifty-eight years since they appeared in the papers. The language of the report of the New Haven Committee will be admired for its magnanimity and eloquence. It was probably drawn by either Pierpont Edwards or David Austin. Mr. Edwards was a distinguished Democratic Republican in his day, and was appointed U. S. District Judge of Connecticut by Mr. Jefferson. He was the father of Judge Ogden Edwards of this city and a relative of Col. Burr. Mr. David Austin was an eminent clergyman, well known for his eccentricities, as well as his talents and benevolence. Mr. Hillhouse (father of the poet) was for many years U. S. Senator from Connecticut and a great public benefactor. Judge Ingersoll, of the Supreme Court of Connecticut, was elected Lieut. Governor of the State, by the Democrats, by a large majority in

From the Connecticut Journal, March 10, 1784.

At a Town Meeting holden in New-Haven upon the 8th day of March, A. D. 1784—
On motion of Pierpont Edwards, Esq.,
Voted, That Pierpont Edwards, John Whiting, David Austin, David Auwater, Samuel Huggies; James Hillbouss, Jonathan Ingersoil and Jonathan Dickerman, be a Committee to accommodate to the communication of the com tee to consider of the propriety and expediency of admit-ting as inhabitants of this town persons who, in the course of the late war, have adhered to the cause of Great Britain against these United States, and are of fair characters, and will be good and useful inembers of society, and faithful childrens of this State, and that said Committee report to this merting. his meeting.

The above Committee made a report, from which we

"That by the express provisions of the statutes of this state, each town has the exclusive right and power of admitting its inhabitants; that by the articles of the Definitive Freaty, and the recommendations of Congress founded nereon, a spirit of real peace and philanthropy toward countrymen of the aforesaid description are most

That as these United States have, by the blessing of Heaven, established their Independence, and secured their liberties on that basis to which their wishes and exertionwere directed, and as the great national question on which hose persons differed from us in sentiment is terminated authoritatively in favor of the United States, it is our opinion that, in point of law and constitution, it will be proper to admit as inhabitants of the town such persons as are specificated in said vote; but that no persons who have consisted manufacted and lawless plundering and murder, or have waged war against these United States, contrary to the laws and usages of civilized nations, ought on any account to be admitted."

· With respect to the expediency of such a measure, we beg leave to report, that in our opinion, no nation, however di-tinguished for prowess in arms and suc ess in war, can be considered as truly great, unless it is also distinguished he considered as truly great, unless it is also distinguished for justice and magnanimity; and no people can, with the least propriety, lay claim to the character of being just, who violate their most solemn treaties, or of being magnanimous, who persecute a conquered and submitting enemy. mous, who persecute a conquered and submitting enemy. That therefore the present and future national glory of the United States is deeply concerned in their conduct relative to the persons described in said vote. For, although at the present moment, while the distress and calamities of the war are fresh in our recollection, we may consider a persecuting spirit as justifiable, we must, when dispassionate reason resumes her empire, reproduce such a line of conduct, and be convinced that future generations, not being influenced by our passions, will form their ideas of our characters, from those acts which a faithful historian shall have recorded, and not from our passions, of which they can have no history."

A true copy of Record, examined by SAMUEL BISHOP, From the New York Packet, May 10, 1784.

"A correspondent observes that be once thought Connecticut the most infamous State in the Union for Faction and TUMULT; but late accounts from B iston, (Mass.) and New-tork, tell us that those States embosom the same vile, contemptible principles, though they break into action upon lifferent abjects. "A faction in New York are busy in persecuting the Roy-alists who remained in the city during the late war, and who ought to be protected by the selemin faith of Treaties, from such wanton in ults. However the feetings of these from the control of the cont from such wanton insults. However the feelings of these inflammatory Whigs may have been irritated by losses and injuries in the fury of civil war; certainly the sacred nature of a Treaty ought to influence their minds and incline them to sacrifice their feelings to the reputation of the State. It is conwardly to trample on a conquered foc. A Hero is content with victory—dastards only plunge a dagger in the breast of a prisoner. An army of 20,000 men resolves to murder and destroy, would not endanger a State so much as a mob which takes the administration of justice out of the bands of the legal Magistrates. The leaders of a mob may pretend to be konest men and patriots, and possibly they may make themselves and adherents think so; but impartial posterity never fail to rank them, to a man, in the list of Fools or Knaves."

[Those who wish minute information respecting the Refugees or Tories, are referred to the Me moirs, Journal and Letters of Samuel Curwen of Massachusetts, by George A. Ward, Esq., of this city. The work has not, however, been consulted in making up the above sketch.]

WATCHES MADE BY MACHINERY .- A watchmaker in London, after devoting twenty years of his life to inventions, is now enabled, by a variety of machines, to construct an incredible number of watches, of every variety of sizes, in a day! By one machine 300 perfect plates can be produced in one day; and by five machines, also centre, third and fourth wheels crossed, polished and cut, with balances for 300 movements. By another, 300 pinions are cut and rounded; another drills the holes, the tapping, screw holes, &c., planting the depths and escapements. Four other machines will make pivots for 60 movements in a day. Twenty other machines, for every description of work connected with watch-making, make up the as favorable terms as any set. The best chronometer makers in London have declared that every part produced by them is far superior to any thing that has been, or can be, produced by other means at the present day.

A FIRE-EXTINGUISHER .- The working of a new fire engine was exhibited in Wall street yesterday morning, in front of the Exchange. It appeared to be a machine of great power. It is worked with two sets of brakes, one half of the men standing on the pavement, and the remainder on a platform at the top of the engine. About forty or fifty persons are necessary to man the arms. While we were present a stream was thrown through two lengths of hose and pipe, say thirty or forty feet, over the top of the flag-staff on the roof of the Exchange. This machine, we understand, was built for the Northern Liberty Fire Co. No. 42, of this city, by Mr. Waterman of Hudson. We should think that it must be of great use in cases of fire at the tops of lofty buildings, but it is rather too cumbersome to be drawn to distant parts of the city with sufficient speed to be of much advantage. We presume, however, that it is only intended to be used in the lower district. [Com. Adv.

THE BRITISH NATIONAL DEBT .- The presen national debt of Great Britain commenced in the reign of William III. In 1697, the amount was $5,000,000 sterling, and it was deemed enormous at that time. In 1702, it was £14,000,000 sterling; in 1714, £54,000,000; in 1749, £78,000,-000; in 1763, after the end of a sevens years' war, £139.000,000; in 1786, three years after the American war, £268,000 000; in 1798, after the civil and foreign war, £462,000,000; in 1802, at the close of the French Revolutionary war, £571,-000,000; in 1814, at the close of the war against Bonaparte, £365.000 000; in 1817, £848,000,-000; in 1840, £789,578,720.
